INDEX

A

Academic journals: customer satisfaction with, 131; journal editors as managers and, 133; missions of sponsoring organizations and, 132; positioning of, in knowledge market, 132–133; as products of professional organizations, 131; Total Quality Management approach to, 133; value-oriented perspective on, 131–132

"Academic Journals Are Products of Professional Organizations," 131–133

Academy of Human Resource Development (AHRD), 242–243

Accountability, of trainers for training transfer, 352–353, 355

Action science model, of informal learning, 137

Adult education, in Africa: adult learning principles and, 359; community vs. individual contexts and, 359; environment and, 359–360; gender roles and, 360; globalization and, 360, 362; HRD implications and, 361–362; indigenous vs. traditional forms of adult education and, 359; opportunities for, 360; professional development and, 360

Adult education: definition of, 359; environment and, 359–360; globalization and, 360, 362

Adult learning participation: choice as motivating factor in, 447–448; critical factors in, definition of, 443; developing countries and, 449; HRD research on, 447–449; HRD theory/practice and, 443; individual factors and, 448; intrinsic factors and, 447; models of, 447; motivation theory and, 447; research on, 444; socialization factor model of, 447. See also Adult learning; Learning participation, in management development in China (study)

Adult learning: adult education and, 359; from artifacts/tools, 138; clusters of, 137; community vs. individual contexts and, 359; facilitating agent for, 138; HRD in workplace and, 136–137; work contexts and, 148. See also Adult education; Adult education, in Africa; Adult learning participation; Informal learning; Interactive workplace learning (study); Learning participation in management development in China (study); Workplace learning

Africa. See Adult education, in Africa

Allen, T. D., "Formal Mentoring Programs and Organizational Attraction," 43–58

Amutabi, M., Foundations of Adult Education in Africa, reviewed, 359–363

Anagnosis, 483–484

Anderson, J. E., "Influences of New Development Practices on Temporary Employee Work-Related Attitudes," 279–303

"Anyone? Anyone? Anyone?" 365–369

Articles: "Choosing Among Tests of Emotional Intelligence: What Is the Evidence?" 9–42; "Comparing the Effects of Determinants of Turnover Intentions Between Taiwanese and U.S. Hospital Employees," 403–321; "Employer Assessment of Work-Related Competencies and Workplace Adaptation," 305–324; "Formal Mentoring Programs and Organizational Attraction," 43–58; "Influence of Trainee Characteristics, Instructional Satisfaction, and Organizational Climate on Perceived Learning and Training Transfer," 85–116; "Influences of New Development Practices on Temporary Employee Work-Related Attitudes," 279–303; "Key Characteristics of Effective and Ineffective Developmental Interactions," 59–84; "Learning in Interactive Work Situations: It Takes Two to Tango: Why Not Invite Both Partners to Dance?" 135–158; "Learning to Become a Machine Operator: The Dialogical Relationship Between Context, Self, and Content," 199–221; "Making Subjective Judgments in Quantitative Studies: The Importance of Using Effect Sizes and Confidence Intervals," 159–173; "Participation in Management Training in a Transitioning Context: A Case of China," 443–473; "Roles of Informal Workplace Trainers in Different Organizational Contexts: Empirical Evidence from Australian Companies," 175–198; "Supplier Diversity: A Missing Link in Human Resource Development," 325–341; "Survey Ranking of Job Competencies by Perceived Employee Importance: Comparing Three Regions," 371–402; "Tuition Reimbursement, Perceived Organizational Support, and Turnover Intention Among Graduate Business School Students," 423–442

Copyright © 2006 Wiley Periodicals, Inc.

Avoidance, by leaders, 366

B

Baruch, Y., "Tuition Reimbursement, Perceived Organizational Support, and Turnover Intention Among Graduate Business School Students," 423–442
Behavioral change: attitudes and, 248–250; cynicism and, 250; intentions and, 248; organizational support and, 250; perceived locus of control and, 250–252; role theory and, 247; theory of planned behavior and, 247–250, 261, 263–264. See also Performance improvement
Benson, G. S., "Tuition Reimbursement, Perceived Organizational Support, and Turnover Intention Among Graduate Business School Students," 423–442
Brockman, J. L., "Learning to Become a Machine Operator: The Dialogical Relationship Between Context, Self, and Content," 199–221
Burns, J. Z., "Frederick Lewis Otte (1934–2004): The Consummate Human Resource Developer," 5–8

C

Callahan, J. L., "Making Subjective Judgments in Quantitative Studies: The Importance of Using Effect Sizes and Confidence Intervals," 159–173
Capacity, leadership, 366
Career development: career advice topics and, 65, 74; developmental interactions and, 61; job/career satisfaction and, 413; multisource feedback and, 246
Career satisfaction. See Job/career satisfaction
Change. See Behavioral change; Organizational change
Chauvinism, 483
China. See Job skills, employee perceptions of, in China (study); Learning participation, in management development in China (study); Turnover intentions, in Taiwanese and U.S. organizations (study)
"Choosing Among Tests of Emotional Intelligence: What Is the Evidence?" 9–42
"Closing the Gap Between Research and Practice in Human Resource Development," 343–350
Coaching, learning transfer and, 180
Communities of practice, 204, 212–213
"Comparing the Effects of Determinants of Turnover Intentions Between Taiwanese and U.S. Hospital Employees," 403–321
Competitive advantage: economic theory of, 306, 320; workplace adaptation and, 305–306
Competitiveness, public education and, 477
Confidence intervals (CI): APA style manual and, 163, 170; arelational, 167; classes of, 167; definition of, 166; encouraging dialogue about, 171; history of, 166–167; HRD and, 169; implications for application of, 168–170; interpretation of, 167–168; populational value and, 167; practical meaning and, 168; quantitative studies and, 159–160; recommendations for changes in use of, 170–171; relational, 167; review of HRDQ and, 160; significance and, 164, 170; statistical packages and, 171; statistical significance and, 168–169; subjectivity of research and, 159, 170; as supplement to NHST, 159–160, 163; teaching methods for, 170–171; value of, 167
Conflict management, emotional intelligence and, 32
Contextual model of learning, 246–247
Credible and open process, Nucor Corporation example of, 485–486
Customer service: academic journals and, 131–133; Total Quality Management and, 133

D

D'Abate, C. P., "Key Characteristics of Effective and Ineffective Developmental Interactions," 59–84

DeLong, D. W., Lost Knowledge: Confronting the Threat of an Aging Workforce, reviewed, 491–494

Developmental interactions: advisee role and, 76; adviser factors (expertise, needs focus, self-discovery focus) and, 64, 72, 74–75; benefits vs. risks of, 60; career development and, 61, 65; career development issues and, 61, 65; communication factors (face-to-face vs. technology) and, 64–65, 72–73; definition of, 60; employee learning and, 60, 76–77; expanded model of, 61; factors affecting effectiveness of, 62–66; factors affecting, 62; job-/task-specific issues and, 66, 74, 76; mentoring and, 60–62; multiple forms of, 61; organizational role and, 76; personal factors (age, gender, race) and, 62–63, 69–70; relationship factors (initiation, frequency, length, duration, source) and, 64–65, 69, 71, 74–75; research on, 61–62; typology of, 61; work-life issues and, 61, 65; work-life support and, 61, 65. See also Developmental interactions, characteristics of (study)

Developmental interactions, characteristics of (study): advisee role and, 76; adviser factors (expertise, needs focus, self-discovery focus) and, 64, 72, 74–75; appendix, 78–81; career development advice and, 61, 65; communication factors (face-to-face vs. design/procedure, 66; discussion, 74–77; discussion topics and, 65–66, 72, 74; factors interview, 78–81; job/task-specific advice and, 66, 74, 76; measures, 67–68; method, 66–69; organizational role and, 76; participants, 67, 69; personal factors (age, gender, race) and, 62–63, 69–70; practice implications, 75–76; purpose, 60–61; relationship factors (initiation, frequency, length, duration, source) and, 64–65, 69, 71, 74–75; results, 69–74; study limitations, 77; tests of hypotheses and, 69–72; tests of topic and, 72–74; work-life advice and, 61, 65, 74. See also Developmental interactions

Ding, C. G., "Comparing the Effects of Determinants of Turnover Intentions Between Taiwanese and U.S. Hospital Employees," 403–321

Dirkx, J. M., "Learning to Become a Machine Operator: The Dialogical Relationship Between Context, Self, and Content," 199–221

Diversity: manager sensitivity to, 376–377. See also Diversity practitioners; Supplier diversity programs

Diversity practitioners: economic considerations and, 327; educators for supplier diversity, 338–339; educator role and, 338–339; HRD practitioners and, 327–328, 332–333, 337–339; researcher role and, 339; role of, 326–327, 332–337; as strategists for supplier diversity, 337–338; strategist role and, 327–328

Dogmatism, 483

Doornbos, A. J., "Learning in Interactive Work Situations: It Takes Two to Tango: Why Not Invite Both Partners to Dance?" 135–158

E

Eddy, E. R., "Key Characteristics of Effective and Ineffective Developmental Interactions," 59–84

"Editor's Challenge to Human Resource Development, An," 1–4

Editorial: "Academic Journals Are Products of Professional Organizations," 131–133; "An Editor's Challenge to Human Resource Development," 1–4; "Frederick Lewis Otte (1934–2004): The Consummate Human Resource Developer," 5–8; "Research: The Bridge Between Human Resource Development Practitioners and Scholars," 235–243

Education: competitiveness and, 477. See also Adult education; Adult education, in Africa; Learning

Effect size (ES): APA style manual and, 163, 170; benchmark values and, 166; definitions of, 164; determining practical significance and, 165–166; difference indices and, 165; encouraging dialogue about, 171; group overlap indices and, 165; history of use of, 164–165; HRD and, 169; implications for application of, 168–170; interpretation of, 166; practical meaning and, 168; quantitative studies and, 159–160; recommendations for changes in use of, 170–171; relationship indices and, 165; review of HRDQ and, 160; significance and, 164, 170; statistical packages and, 171; statistical significance and, 168–169; subjectivity of research and, 159, 170; as supplement to NHST, 159–160, 163; teaching methods for, 170–171; types of, 165

Emotion: rationality and, 224, 226–227; social interactions and, 225–226; strategic HRD and, 224. See also Emotional intelligence (EI)

Emotional Competency Index (ECI-2), 12, 14–15, 19–22, 27–31, 32, 37. See also Emotional intelligence (EI) tests, and HRD professionals (study)

Emotional intelligence (EI): conflict management and, 32; customer service training and, 33; definition of, 11; history of, 11; of MBA students, 35; organizational change and, 32; physician training and, 32; research on application of, 36; research on development of, 34–36; research on impact of, 36–37; role of culture in, 35–36; stress management and, 33; transformational leadership and, 34

Emotional Intelligence Questionnaire (EIQ), 12, 14–15, 25–29. See also Emotional intelligence (EI) tests, and HRD professionals (study)

Emotional intelligence (EI) tests: construct validity and, 13; content validity and, 13; Emotional Competency Index (ECI-2) and, 12, 14–15, 19–22, 27–31, 32, 37; Emotional Quotient Inventory (EQ-i), 12, 14–15, 19, 22–25, 27–29, 37; external validity and, 14; face validity and, 13; HRD and, 9–10, 31–34; leadership development and, 33–34; Mayer-Solovey-Caruso Emotional Intelligence Test (MSCEIT), 12, 14–19, 28–31, 33, 37; organizational uses of, 10, 31–32; predictive validity and, 14; test bandwidth and, 31; test fidelity and, 31; test specificity and, 31; training industry and, 9; training uses of, 9–10, 32–33; types of, 11; validity measures and, 13–14, 29–30

Emotional intelligence (EI) tests, and HRD professionals (study): conclusion, 37–38; definition of EI and, 11; discussion, 28–37; Emotional Competency Index (ECI-2) and, 12, 14–15, 19–22, 27–31, 32, 37; Emotional Quotient Inventory (EQ-i), 12, 14–15, 19, 22–25, 27–29, 37; focus of study and, 12–13; future directions, 37–38; HRD research and, 34–37; leadership development and, 33–34; literature review method and, 22–12; Mayer-Solovey-Caruso Emotional Intelligence Test (MSCEIT), 12, 14–19, 28–31, 33, 37; need for, 9–10; organization development and, 31–32; purpose, 10; research questions, 10; training/development and, 32–33; valid EI measurement and, 28–30; validity measures and, 13–14, 29

Emotional Quotient Inventory (EQ-i), 12, 14–15, 19, 22–25, 27–29, 37. See also Emotional intelligence (EI) tests, and HRD professionals (study)

Employee attitudes: behavioral change and, 248–250; HRD practices and, 281, 299; organizational socialization and, 281. See also New employee development (NED) practices, and temporary employee attitudes (study)

Employee development: mentoring and, 60; perceived organizational support and, 425–427, 439; turnover intention and, 413–414, 426. See also Developmental interactions, characteristics of (study); Employee development; Training/development; Workers

Employee learning: formal training and, 59–60; organizational success and, 59. See also Adult learning; Developmental interactions, characteristics of (study); Training/development

Employees: everyday problem solving by, 202–203; expertise of, 203; formal training of, 59–60; frontline, 201–203; identity development of, 203, 213–214; problem solving by, 302. See also Employee abilities; Employee development; Employee learning; New employee development (NED) practices, and temporary employee perceptions (study); Workers; Workforce; Workplace adaptation, and employee competencies (study)

"Employer Assessment of Work-Related Competencies and Workplace Adaptation," 305–324
Ericson, M., "Strategic HRD and the Relational Self," 223–229
Ethics: lack of, by leaders, 365–366. See also Leadership crisis
Everyday problem solving, 202
Experiential learning, informal learning and, 204, 218

F

Failure: hubris, hamartia, and anagnosis and, 482–483; learning from, 481; of world powers, 482–483. See also Organizational failure
Featured Articles: "Invited Reaction to Postfeedback Development Perceptions: Applying the Theory of Planned Behavior," 269–278; "Postfeedback Development Perceptions: Applying the Theory of Planned Behavior," 245–267
Feedback: attitudes toward behavioral change and, 248–250; contextual model of learning and, 246–247; intentions and behavioral improvement and, 248; perceived behavioral control and, 250–252; performance improvement and, 245; rater/ratee factors and, 248–249; role theory and, 247; theory of planned behavior and, 247–250, 261, 263–264; training models and, 247. See also Multisource feedback (MSF); Postfeedback development perceptions (study)
Ford, R., "Why We Fail: How Hubris, Hamartia, and Anagnosis Shape Organizational Behavior," 481–489
Formal mentoring programs, and applicant attraction (study): applicant attraction and, 44–45, 53–54; benefits of, 43; conclusion, 55; discussion, 52–53; future research, 53; hypotheses, 45–47, 50–51; implications, 54; individual differences and, 45–47, 53; learning goal orientation and, 46, 53; materials, 48–49; measures, 49–50; method, 48; participants, 48; proactive personality and, 47, 53; procedure, 48; research questions, 44; results, 50–52; self-efficacy and, 46–47, 53; study limitations, 54–55
"Formal Mentoring Programs and Organizational Attraction," 43–58
Formal training, employee learning and, 59–60
Forum: "Closing the Gap Between Research and Practice in Human Resource Development," 343–350; "Mega-Trends in the American Workforce," 475–479; "The New Human Resource Department: A Cross-Functional Unit," 117–123; "Strategic HRD and the Relational Self," 223–229; "Trainer Self-Loathing?" 351–357; "Why We Fail: How Hubris, Hamartia, and Anagnosis Shape Organizational Behavior," 481–489
Foundations of Adult Education in Africa, reviewed, 359–363
"Frederick Lewis Otte (1934–2004): The Consummate Human Resource Developer," 5–8

G

Garavan, T., "Postfeedback Development Perceptions: Applying the Theory of Planned Behavior," 245–267
Gender: adult education in Africa and, 360; supplier diversity programs and, 327
General Method of Theory-Building Research in Applied Disciplines model, 270–277
Gilley, J. W., "Research: The Bridge Between Human Resource Development Practitioners and Scholars," 235–243
Givens-Skeaton, S., "Key Characteristics of Effective and Ineffective Developmental Interactions," 59–84
Global competitiveness, 306. See also Competitive advantage
Globalization: adult education and, 360, 362; HRD practitioners and, 305–306, 321–32, 416
Greed, of leaders, 367
Greer, B. M., "Supplier Diversity: A Missing Link in Human Resource Development," 325–341
Groves, K., "Choosing Among Tests of Emotional Intelligence: What Is the Evidence?" 9–42

Gubrium, J. F., Handbook of Interview Research, reviewed; Inside Interviewing: New Lenses, New Concerns, reviewed; Postmodern Interviewing, reviewed, 125–129

H

Hamartia, 482–484
Handbook of Interview Research, reviewed, 125–129
Harris, R., "Roles of Informal Workplace Trainers in Different Organizational Contexts: Empirical Evidence from Australian Companies," 175–198
Hatcher, T., "An Editor's Challenge to Human Resource Development," 1–4
Holstein, J. A., Handbook of Interview Research, reviewed; Inside Interviewing: New Lenses, New Concerns, reviewed; Postmodern Interviewing, reviewed, 125–129
HRD, new paradigm for: addressing needs of work-filled retirement, 478; aligning education and goals for competitiveness, 477; aligning workforce development programs with market needs, 476–477; assisting lower-wage workers, 478; assisting workers in volatile labor market, 477–478; components of, 476–478; need for, 476, 478–479; workforce trends and, 475–476. See also Diversity practitioners
HRD activities: analysis and, 238–239; design and, 238–239; evaluation and, 238–239; implementation and, 238–239; scholar-practitioners and, 238–241; traditional research process and, 238–239
HRD practitioners: adult learning and, 359; assumptions of, about HRD, 235–236; attitudes toward training of, 235–236; diversity programs and, 327–328, 332–333, 337–339; global competitiveness and, 305–306, 321–322; HRD research and, 235, 241–243; HRD scholar-practitioners and, 235–236, 238, 243; informal workplace trainers and, 178–179; learning organizations and, 178; linking theory and practice by, 236, 242–243. See also Diversity practitioners; Trainers
HRD professionals. See Diversity practitioners; HRD practitioners; HRD scholar-practitioners
HRD research: data analysis and, 128; debate about, 235, 242–243; factors influencing interviewing and, 126–129; home-buying example and, 236–238; HRD activities and, 238–239; HRD practitioners and, 235, 241–243; linking theory and practice and, 236, organizational collaboration and, 276–277; organizational decision making and, 236–238; as process, 235; qualitative vs. quantitative, 125; recommendation for HRD scholar-practitioners about, 242; strategic decision making and, 238; technical advances and, 128; theory building and, 270; theory-building models/research and, 269–271, 276–277; Tower of Babel about, 242; trends in, 125; vulnerability of, to organizational resources, 269. See also HRD research-practice gap; Research
HRD research-practice gap: AHRD articles on, 343; causes of, 344–345; claims of, 343–344; conclusions, 348; definitions of, 344; forms of, 344; implications, 348; need for closing, 345–346; need for research-practice synergy and, 343; past efforts to close, 346; practice/practitioner role in, 345; research/researcher role in, 344–345; suggestions for closing, 346–348; suggestions for HRD organizations, 348; suggestions for practice/practitioners, 347; suggestions for research/researchers, 346–347
HRD scholar-practitioners: assumptions of, about HRD, 235–236; HRD practitioners and, 235–236, 238, 243; HRD research and, 235, 241–243; recommendations for HRD research for, 242; strategic thinking about HRD and, 236–237
Hubris, 482–484, 487
Hubris, hamartia, and anagnosis (HH&zA): Aristotle and, 482; chauvinism and, 483; creating credible and open process and, 485–486; definitions of, 482–483; dogmatism and, 483; failure and, 482; failure of world powers and, 482–483; reflection and dialogue and, 486–488

Human resources (HR): current, 118–120; factors restricting research progress in, 119–120; global competition and, 117–118; and HR function, 118; international, 121; top priorities of, 119; transformation of, 117–118; trust and, 118; worker needs and, 118–119
Human resources department, as cross-functional unit: division of labor and, 121; internal organizational politics and, 121; model of, 122; organizational effectiveness and, 122; strategic planning and, 117–118, 120; talent management and, 119, 121; technology as enabler in, 119, 121; trust and, 119, 120; worker autonomy/freedom and, 118, 120; worker fringe benefits and, 119
Human resources development (HRD): challenge to, 1–3; expanding, theory, 2; globalization and, 4; integrity in, 4; long-term vision and, 4; as organizational value-added activity, 236, 243, 245; positive approach to, 2; professionalization of, 4; redefining, 1–2; research excellence in, 2; respecting heart in, 4; responsibility to stakeholders of, 4, 368. See also HRD, new paradigm for; HRD activities; HRD practitioners; HRD research; Human resources (HR); Strategic HRD

I

Identity, development of worker, 203, 213–214
"Influence of Trainee Characteristics, Instructional Satisfaction, and Organizational Climate on Perceived Learning and Training Transfer," 85–116
"Influences of New Development Practices on Temporary Employee Work-Related Attitudes," 279–303
Informal learning: action science model of, 137; characteristics of, 201; communities of practice and, 204, 212–213; contextual considerations and, 201, 304; definition of, 201; experiential learning and, 204; of frontline employees, 202; interactions and, 136–137; James Dewey and, 204; manager as facilitator of, 216–217; as reflective process, 204; related theoretical constructs to, 204; research on, 201–202; situated learning and, 204; social context and, 137–138; social nature of, 204, 212; training programs and, 216, 218; worker identity formation and, 203; workplace expertise and, 203; workplace learning and, 136. See also Informal learning, in problem-solving contexts (study); Informal workplace trainers, roles of (study); Workplace learning
Informal learning, in problem-solving contexts (study): communities of practice and, 204, 212–213; data collection/analysis, 206–207; discussion, 211–218; everyday problem solving and, 202–203; findings, 207–211; future research, 217–218; learning as relational/dialogical process and, 209–213, 217; learning as social process and, 204, 212; learning in context and, 211–213; learning in job and, 213–214; learning outcomes through problem solving and, 210–211; literature review, 201–203; methods, 205–207; practical implications for HRD and, 215–217; problem solving as learning and, 208–209; purpose, 200; research questions, 203–204, 211–214; selection of site/participants, 205–206; theoretical framework, 203–205; theoretical implications for HRD and, 214–215; worker expertise/identity and, 203, 212–214
Informal workplace trainers: coaching/mentoring and, 180; formal workplace trainers and, 176–178; HRD practitioners and, 178–179; learning system of organization and, 176; learning transfer and, 180. See also Informal workplace trainers, roles of (study)
Informal workplace trainers, roles of (study): actions undertaken by, 184, 191, 195–196; benefits to theory of, 176–177; coaching/mentoring and, 180, 191; conclusions, 191–192; contextual factors and, 187–188, 192; formal educators/trainers and, 176–177; further research and, 194; implications for HRD and, 193–194; learning transfer and, 180, 191; literature review, 177–180;

measures, 183–184; method, 181; need for, 177; organizational learning system and, 177–180; participants, 182–183; procedure, 184; purpose of, 176–177; research background and, 177; research questions, 181; results, 184–191; role conceptions of, 186–187, 191–192; role dimensions of, 184– 186, 191–192; sampling, 181–182; theoretical background and, 177–180; trainer characteristics and, 188–192. See also Informal workplace trainers
Inside Interviewing: New Lenses, New Concerns, reviewed, 125–129
Intentions, and behavioral change 248
Interaction partner, defined, 137
Interactive workplace learning (study): adult learner activities and, 144–146, 150, 154–155; clusters of learning and, 137, 151; data analysis, 142–144; data collection, 141–142; definition of learning and, 137; didactic learning and, 137; discussion, 150–154; hierarchical organizational position and learning activities and, 149–150, 153; interaction partner and, 137–138, 151; interaction partners' activities and, 146–148, 151, 155–156; method, 140–144; need for, 136; negative reactions vs. compliments and, 146–147, 151; occupation-related differences/similarities in learning activities and, 148–149, 152; participants, 140–141; power issues and, 138–139, 153; practical implications and, 153–154; purpose, 136; relationship between learning activities, work contexts, and power and, 138–139; research questions, 139, 150–153; results, 144–150; study framework, 138; theoretical background on learning and, 136–139
"Invited Reaction to Postfeedback Development Perceptions: Applying the Theory of Planned Behavior," 269–278

J

Job/career satisfaction: employee/career development programs and, 413–414, 426; leadership style and, 413; perceived organizational support and, 425; turnover intentions and, 403–404; of workers, 118; work-life support and, 65. See also Turnover intentions, in Taiwanese and U.S. organizations (study)
Job competencies, employee perceptions of, in China (study): age and, 381, 390; Chinese collectivist attitude and, 380, 397; Chinese ethics and, 386, 397; cultural/symbolic attributes and, 381; definition of job skills and, 372; dependent variables and, 379–381, 384; dispositional aspects and, 381, 386–388, 391, 395; dispositional qualities and, 379–380, 386; economic context and, 383; educational attainment and, 372, 374; employee attitudes and, 372; employee ranking of job competencies and, 388–393; firm ownership and, 383, 393–394; firm ranking of job competencies and, 393; firm-level characteristics and, 383; future research and, 397; generic vs. firm-specific skills and, 377, 395; hierarchical linear model and, 383–384; individual characteristics and, 381–383, 388–393; industry and, 383, 393–394; job basics and, 387, 391; job competence measurement and, 372, 374, 384, 386–388; job position/rank and, 381, 391, 396; job type and, 395, 397; market reform and, 373; measurement models and, 383–385; methods, 378–384; on-the-job training and, 378, 381–383, 392, 396; problem solving and, 387–388, 391–392; productivity and, 372; proficiency and, 382, 392; qualities for job competencies and, 384–388; region and, 383, 393; research questions, 378; resource opportunity structure and, 381; results, 384–393; sampling method, 378–379; self-knowledge and, 386; sex and, 381; socialization and, 381; sociocultural model and, 373–375, 396; study purpose, 373, 384; study questionnaire, 373, 378; teamwork and, 381; technical ability and, 387; theoretical framework, 373–378; universal vs. culture-specific skills and, 374–376, 396; workforce changes and, 372, 381; workplace attributes and, 381; workplace change and, 382, 392
Job skills: competence measures and, 372, 374; cross-cultural generalizability of,

373–376, 396; as culture-specific, 374, 376; definition of, 372; educational attainment and, 372, 374, 390; employee perceptions of, 374; frameworks of, 374–375, 387; general vs. firm-specific, 377; productivity and, 372; resource opportunity structure and, 381; sociocultural approach to, 374–375; universal vs. culture-specific, 374–376; workplace context and, 377. See also Job competencies, employee perceptions of, in China (study)

K

Kahnweiler, W. M., "Frederick Lewis Otte (1934–2004): The Consummate Human Resource Developer," 5–8

"Key Characteristics of Effective and Ineffective Developmental Interactions," 59–84

Kiel, F., Moral Intelligence: Enhancing Business Performance and Leadership Success, reviewed, 231–233

Knowledge: anagnosis and, 483; explicit, 492; organizational success and, 485; tacit, 492; types of, 492. See also Knowledge retention

Knowledge retention: aging workforce and, 491–492; HRD and, 492; information technology and, 493; organizational challenges and, 493; strategic action framework for, 492

Koopmans, H., "Learning in Interactive Work Situations: It Takes Two to Tango: Why Not Invite Both Partners to Dance?" 135–158

Kopp, D. M., "Trainer Self-Loathing?" 351–357

L

Leaders: avoidance by, 366; coping mechanisms of, 366–367; demands on, 366; distrust of, 367; failure of, 365; inadequacies of, 365–366; lying/cheating by, 366–367; overpayment of, 367; oversimplification by, 366. See also Leadership; Managers

Leadership: job/career satisfaction and, 413–415; new methods for, 366. See also Leaders

Leadership crisis: aspects of, 365; capacity and, 365–366; equity and, 368; HRD response to, 368; integrity and, 365–366; provoking questions about, 365; stakeholder voice and, 368; timely decision making and, 368

Leadership development, emotional intelligence and, 33–34

Learning: centrality of self in, 215; contextual model of, 246–247; definition of, 137; formal vs. informal, 60, 76–77; ongoing, 59; situated cognition theory and, 204; social nature of, 204, 212; structured vs. unstructured, 60. See also Adult learning; Behavioral change; Employee learning; Experiential learning; Informal learning; Interactive workplace learning (study); Organizational learning system; Situated learning; Workplace learning

Learning goal orientation, mentoring and, 46

"Learning in Interactive Work Situations: It Takes Two to Tango: Why Not Invite Both Partners to Dance?" 135–158

Learning organizations: characteristics of, 179–180; HRD practitioners and, 178–179; informal workplace trainers and, 180

Learning participation, in management development in China (study): barriers to learning and, 459; commitment to work and, 457; conclusion, 469; context-based learning and, 463–464; cultural orientation and, 457–458; data analysis, 452–454; data collection, 452; decisional context and, 454–458; defining the concept of participation and, 465–466; demand for management resources and, 444–445; discussion/implications, 462–469; economic environmental change and, 454–455; economy and, 449; findings, 454–462; formal learning and, 467; formulated meanings of learning participation and, 458–460; globalization and, 444, 446; guanxi model and, 466, 468; impact on individual and, 460–461; organization and, 461–462; implications, 467–468; increase in team spirit and, 459; interview and, 452, 469; lack of Chinese orientation to learning and, 459–460; lack of trainer experience and, 460; learning beyond participation and, 460–462; learning context and, 466–467; learning experience as rewarding/significant and, 458–459; limitations, 468–469; linking of training to practice and, 459; management training/development in China and, 449; masculinity model and, 466, 468; method, 450–454; need for developing management competency and, 455–456; participant selection, 451–452; participation and cultural context and, 466–467; participation and environmental pressure and, 462–463; participation as challenging experience and, 463–465; participation as transformational experience and, 463; perceptions of M.B.A. program and, 456–457; phenomenological inquiry approach and, 450, 469; power distance and, 467–468; problems with M.B.A. programs and, 445; propositions, 467–468; purpose, 445, 450; research questions, 445–446; researchers' assumptions, 450–451; study significance, 446; theoretical perspectives, 446–449; training delivery and, 460; transferring learning at work and, 464–465

"Learning to Become a Machine Operator: The Dialogical Relationship Between Context, Self, and Content," 199–221

Learning transfer: coaching/mentoring and, 180; informal workplace trainers and, 180; supervisor and peer support and, 180; workplace factors and, 180

Lennick, D., Moral Intelligence: Enhancing Business Performance and Leadership Success, reviewed, 231–233

Lim, D. H., "Influence of Trainee Characteristics, Instructional Satisfaction, and Organizational Climate on Perceived Learning and Training Transfer," 85–116

Lin, C.-P., "Comparing the Effects of Determinants of Turnover Intentions Between Taiwanese and U.S. Hospital Employees," 403–321

Locus of control, and behavioral change, 250–252

Lost Knowledge: Confronting the Threat of an Aging Workforce, reviewed, 491–494

Lying/cheating, by leaders, 366–367

M

M.B.A. training/development programs. See Learning participation, in management development in China (study)

McCarthy, A., "Postfeedback Development Perceptions: Applying the Theory of Planned Behavior," 245–267

McEnrue, M. P., "Choosing Among Tests of Emotional Intelligence: What Is the Evidence?" 9–42

Machine operators, workplace learning by. See Informal learning, in problem-solving contexts (study)

"Making Subjective Judgments in Quantitative Studies: The Importance of Using Effect Sizes and Confidence Intervals," 159–173

Malthia, T. E., "Supplier Diversity: A Missing Link in Human Resource Development," 325–341

Management development (MD): adaptation to change and, 444; impact of, 444; organizational effectiveness and, 444. See also Learning participation, in management development in China (study); Training/development

Managers: cross-cultural approach of, 376–377, 396. See also Leaders

Marques, J. F., "The New Human Resource Department: A Cross-Functional Unit," 117–123

Mayer-Solovey-Caruso Emotional Intelligence Test (MSCEIT), 12, 14–19, 28–31, 33, 37. See also Emotional intelligence (EI) tests, and HRD professionals (study)

"Mega-Trends in the American Workforce," 475–479

Mentoring: applicant attraction and, 44–45, 53–54; benefits of, 44; employee learning and, 60; factors affecting, 62; as learning goal process, 46; learning transfer and, 180; life stage theory and, 44; organizational concern for employees and, 45; person-organization fit and, 46; publicity on, 44; research on, 43; self-efficacy and, 46–47; from symbolic action perspective, 45, 53; typology of, 61. See also Developmental interactions; Formal mentoring programs; Formal mentoring programs, and applicant attraction (study); Mentoring

Miller, K. L., review by, 491–494

Minority business enterprises (MBEs): definitions and, 328; demographic factors and, 325–326; economic imperative in, 326; supplier diversity programs and, 326
Moral intelligence: competencies of, 232; definition of, 231; importance of, 232; organizational applications of, 232; organizational performance and, 232; professional development planning and, 232; self-reporting inventory for, 232
Moral Intelligence: Enhancing Business Performance and Leadership Success, reviewed, 231–233
Morris, M. L., "Influence of Trainee Characteristics, Instructional Satisfaction, and Organizational Climate on Perceived Learning and Training Transfer," 85–116
Motivation: adult learning participation and, 447–448; choice and, 448; typology of, 447
Multisource feedback (MSF): accuracy and, 249; attitudes toward change and, 248–249; career development and, 246; change and development behaviors and, 246; as management development technique, 245, 269; organizational support and, 250; rater/ratee factors and, 248–249; role theory and, 247; self-awareness and, 246; studies on, outcomes, 246; theory of planned behavior and, 247–250, 261, 263–264; theory-building research and, 270–271, 276. See also Feedback; Postfeedback development perceptions (study)

N

Nafukho, F., Foundations of Adult Education in Africa, reviewed, 359–363
New employee development (NED): job satisfaction and, 283, 300; organizational commitment and, 283, 300; organizational socialization and, 281, 295–296; role of HRD and, 279; social identity and, 296; studies on employee attitudes and, 280; turnover intention and, 284
New employee development (NED) practices, and temporary employee attitudes (study): construct measurement, 286–289; control variables, 289; data collection, 286; definition of terms and, 283; discussion, 295–297; future research, 298–299; hypotheses, 283–285, 289–291; hypotheses testing and, 289–291; implications for HRD, 297–299; implications for HRD managers, 299–300; job satisfaction and, 283, 289, 291, 294–295, 297; job satisfaction and turnover intention and, 284; mediating effects of organizational commitment and job satisfaction and, 284–285, 294–295, 297; new employee development practices scale, 287–289; organizational commitment and, 283, 287, 289, 291, 294–297; organizational socialization and, 281, 295–296; purpose, 280–281; rationale for, 280; results, 289–295; sample characteristics, 285–286; sample, 285–286; social identity and, 296; study limitations, 297; study models, 281–283; testing of mediating influences of variables and, 291, 294–295; turnover intention and, 284, 287, 289, 291, 294–297;
"New Human Resource Department: A Cross-Functional Unit, The," 117–123
Null hypothesis significance testing (NHST): APA style manual and, 163, 170; confidence intervals and, 159–160, 166–168; criticisms of, 161; definition of, 161; effect size and, 159–160, 164–166; history of use of, 161–162; HRDQ and, 160, 163; misuse of, 161–163; p values and, 161, 163, 167; process of, 161; purpose of, 161; quantitative studies and, 159–160; recommendations for changes in use of, 170–171; scientific rigor and, 162–163; social science research journal editorial policy and, 163; statistical significance and, 168–169

O

O'Brien, K. E., "Formal Mentoring Programs and Organizational Attraction," 43–58
Ongoing learning, organizational success and, 59
Organizational change: emotional intelligence and, 32; learning/development activities and, 305; organizational socialization and, 277, 295, 297

Organizational commitment, turnover intentions and, 404, 409, 414–415
Organizational failure: anagnosis and, 484; analyzing, 481; chauvinism and, 483; creating credible and open process and, 485–486; dogmatism and, 483; fail safe and, 482; hamartia and, 483–484; hubris and, 483–484; as learning opportunity, 481–482; reflection and dialogue and, 486–488; ultimate, 482
Organizational learning system: definition of, 177; direct and indirect colleagues in, 177; employees as core actors in, 177; formal educators in, 177–178; HRD practitioners and, 178–179; supervisors and, 178
Organizational performance: organizational socialization and, 276; perceptions of training and, 246; performance improvement components and, 245; self-awareness and, 246; training/development and, 236, 245
Organizational socialization: employee work-related attitudes and, 281, 300; new employee development practices and, 277; organizational change and, 277, 295, 297; organizational functioning and, 276; temporary employees and, 281
Otte, F. L., 5–7
Otunga, R., Foundations of Adult Education in Africa, reviewed, 359–363
Oversimplification, by leaders, 366

P

Pappas, B., review by, 231–233
"Participation in Management Training in a Transitioning Context: A Case of China," 443–473
Pattie, M., "Tuition Reimbursement, Perceived Organizational Support, and Turnover Intention Among Graduate Business School Students," 423–442
Perceived organizational support (POS): employee development programs and, 426–427, 439; job satisfaction and, 425; social exchange theory and, 426; training and, 426–427; tuition reimbursement, 427; turnover intention and, 425
Performance. See Organizational performance
Performance appraisal instruments, and training transfer, 351–352, 354
Performance improvement: components of, 245; feedback and, 245; training and, 255. See also Behavioral change
Plakhotnik, M. S., review by, 125–129
Poell, R. E., "Roles of Informal Workplace Trainers in Different Organizational Contexts: Empirical Evidence from Australian Companies," 175–198
"Postfeedback Development Perceptions: Applying the Theory of Planned Behavior," 245–267
Postfeedback development perceptions (study): age and, 252, 263; applying theory-building research and praxis cycle to, 274–276; attitudes toward behavioral change and, 248–250; conclusions, 276–277; contextual model of learning and, 246–247; contributions and scholarship measures of, 274; discussion, 261–264; factor analysis and, 252–257; functionalist or postpositivist framework and, 264–275; in HRD research/practice context, 269; hypothesis 1: perceptions of MSF accuracy and postfeedback behavioral perceptions, 249–250, 258, 262–263; hypothesis 2: cynicism and postfeedback behavioral perceptions, 250, 262; hypothesis 3: perceptions of organizational support and postfeedback behavioral perceptions, 250–251, 258, 261–262; hypothesis 4: internal locus of control and postfeedback behavioral change, 251, 258; implications of, 276–277; independent variable: behavioral change and, 252; intentions and behavioral improvement and, 248; method, 252–257; MSF design/implementation and, 263; organizational culture factors and, 277; participants, 257; perceived behavioral control and, 250–252; procedure, 257; purpose, 252, 269; rater/ratee characteristics and, 248; for HRD and, 261–263; research instrument, 252–253; research model, 252–253; research variables, 253–254; results, 257–261; role theory and, 247; setting, 258; study limitations and, 263–264, 277; as theory-building research, 270–274; theoretical background and, 246–252; theory of planned behavior and, 247–250, 261, 263–264; training models and, 247; validity and, 252–253

Postmodern Interviewing, reviewed, 125–129
Power, workplace learning and, 138–139, 153
Practitioners. See HRD practitioners; HRD scholar-practitioners
Proactive personality, mentoring and, 47
Problem solving: everyday, 202; frontline employees and, 203; importance of, 202; informal learning and, 202–203. See also Problem-solving training
Problem-solving training: formal programs for, 200; for manufacturing employees, 200
Productivity: job skills and, 372; self-efficacy and, 246

R

Rationality: calculative, 224, 226–227; communicative, 225; emotion and, 224, 226–227; strategic HRD and, 224, 226–227
Reflection and dialogue: scenario of mental model and, 487; skills for, 487–488
Reio Jr., T. G., "Employer Assessment of Work-Related Competencies and Workplace Adaptation," 305–324; "Making Subjective Judgments in Quantitative Studies: The Importance of Using Effect Sizes and Confidence Intervals," 159–173
Relational self, strategic HRD and, 226–227
Research: subjectivity of quantitative, 159, 170. See also Confidence intervals (CI); Effect size (ES); HRD research; HRD research-practice gap; Null hypothesis significance testing (NHST)
"Research: The Bridge Between Human Resource Development Practitioners and Scholars," 235–243
Reviews: Foundations of Adult Education in Africa, 359–363; Handbook of Interview Research, 125–129; Inside Interviewing: New Lenses, New Concerns, 125–129; Lost Knowledge: Confronting the Threat of an Aging Workforce, 491–494; Moral Intelligence: Enhancing Business Performance and Leadership Success, 231–233; Postmodern Interviewing, 125–129
Robinson, G., "Key Characteristics of Effective and Ineffective Developmental Interactions," 59–84
Rocco, T. S., review by, 125–129
Role theory, and behavioral change, 247
"Roles of Informal Workplace Trainers in Different Organizational Contexts: Empirical Evidence from Australian Companies," 175–198

S

Scott, C. L., "Supplier Diversity: A Missing Link in Human Resource Development," 325–341
Self-awareness: multisource feedback and, 246; organizational performance and, 246; definition of, 46–47;
Self-efficacy: for development, 47; mentoring and, 46–47
Selvarajan, T. T., "Influences of New Development Practices on Temporary Employee Work-Related Attitudes," 279–303
Short, D. C., "Closing the Gap Between Research and Practice in Human Resource Development," 343–350
Simons, M., "Roles of Informal Workplace Trainers in Different Organizational Contexts: Empirical Evidence from Australian Companies," 175–198
Situated cognition theory, 204
Situated learning, 204
Slattery, J. P., "Influences of New Development Practices on Temporary Employee Work-Related Attitudes," 279–303
Socialization. See Workplace socialization
Statistical significance, NHST and, 168–169, 170
Statistical tests. See Confidence intervals (CI); Effect size (ES); Null hypothesis significance testing (NHST)
Storberg-Walker, J., "Invited Reaction to Postfeedback Development Perceptions: Applying the Theory of Planned Behavior," 269–278

Strategic decision making: home-buying example and, 236–238; organizational effectiveness and, 236, 238; research as basis for, 238
Strategic HRD: challenges to overly rational view of, 224; emotion and, 224, 226–227; importance of, 223–224; interactionist view and, 224–226; rationality and, 224–227; relational self and, 226–227; relational/dialogic approach to, 224–226; theory/practice challenges and, 226–227
"Strategic HRD and the Relational Self," 223–229
"Supplier Diversity: A Missing Link in Human Resource Development," 325–341
Supplier diversity programs: auto industry and, 337; charitable giving and, 336–337; community relations and, 336–337; definitions of terms, 325, 328–329; demographic factors and, 325–326; diversity issues and, 327; diversity practitioners and, 326–327; economic imperative and, 326; economic limitations and, 327; equity issues and, 335; minority business enterprises and, 326; need for, 325; organization development focus and, 335–336; organizational effectiveness and, 326; organizational role of, 320, 328–329; problems related to, 331–332; purpose of, 325, 328; qualifications and, 328; relationship building focus and, 328, 336; research on, 328–329, 333, 335; strategic positioning of, 327–328; supplier diversity initiatives and, 329, 331, 333–337; trust building and, 336. See also Supplier diversity programs, practitioner role in (study)
Supplier diversity programs, practitioner role in (study): background on, 325–328; community relations and, 336–337; conclusions, 339–340; definition of terms and, 328; diversity practitioner competencies and, 333–334; diversity practitioner goals and, 332; diversity practitioner role components and, 326–327, 332–339; educator role and, 338–339; equity issues and, 335; HRD practice implications, 337–339; HRD practitioners' role and, 327–328, 332–339; methods, 329–331; organization development focus and, 335–336; participants, 329; problems related to supplier diversity programs and, 331–332; purpose, 329; relationship-building focus and, 328, 336; researcher role and, 339; results, 331–337; strategist role and, 327–328; studies on, 328–329, 333, 335; supplier diversity initiatives and, 329, 331, 333–337. See also Supplier diversity programs
"Survey Ranking of Job Competencies by Perceived Employee Importance: Comparing Three Regions," 371–402
Sutton, F. C., "Employer Assessment of Work-Related Competencies and Workplace Adaptation," 305–324
Swanson, R. A., "Anyone? Anyone? Anyone?" 365–369
Symbolic action perspective, 45, 53

T

Talent management, HR and, 119, 121
Tannenbaum, S. I., "Key Characteristics of Effective and Ineffective Developmental Interactions," 59–84
Technology, and HR, 119, 121
Temporary employees: dual organizational relationship of, 277, 296; increase in, 277; organizational socialization and, 281, 295–296; social exchange theory and, 296; social identity and, 296. See also New employee development (NED) practices, and temporary employee attitudes (study)
Theory building, 270, 273
Theory of planned behavior, 247–250, 261, 263–264
Total Quality Management (TQM): academic journals and, 133; continuous improvement goal of, 133
"Trainer Self-Loathing?" 351–357
Trainers: accountability of, in training transfer, 351–354; as managers of training transfer, 353; training of, for training transfer, 353–354. See also HRD practitioners
Training/development: accountability and, 352–353, 355; as end in itself, 236; HRD practitioner attitudes and, 236; models of, 247; organizational effectiveness and,

236; organizational performance and, 236, 245; perceived organizational support and, 426–427; performance appraisal instruments and, 351–352, 354; performance improvement and, 252; recipient perceptions of, 246; of trainers, 353–354; trainer accountability and, 351–354. See also Developmental interactions, characteristics of (study); Learning participation, in management development in China (study)

Training transfer: implications for HRD and, 354–355; lack of skills transfer and, 352–353; learning vs. transfer needs and, 91–92; mediating factors in, 353; organizational climate and, 90–91; organizational stake in, 354; performance appraisal instruments and, 351–352, 354; performance issues and, 353; trainee characteristics and, 88–89; trainer accountability and, 351–354; training design factors and, 89–90; transfer intervention matrix and, 106–107. See also Training transfer, trainee, instructional, and organizational factors and (study)

Training transfer, trainee, instructional, and organizational factors and (study): data analysis, 97–98; data collection, 94–95; differences in learning and application and, 101; discussion, 102–106; future research, 107; instruments, 95–97; learning and applicability surveys and, 108–110; learning and applications outcomes, 98–99; learning from training and, 91–92, 96–97, 101, 105; methods, 94–98; organizational climate and, 90–91, 97, 102, 105–106; organizational climate survey and, 112; population, 94; practice implications, 106–107; purpose, 92–94, 107; regression model and, 102; research design, 94–95; research questions, 91–92, 98, 101–102; study framework, 92–94; study limitations, 107; theoretical background, 86–88; trainee characteristics and, 88–89, 105; training design factors and, 89–90; training satisfaction survey and, 111; training transfer variables and, 88–92; transfer from training and, 91–92, 96–97, 101, 105; variable interrelationships and, 102. See also Training transfer

Transfer of training. See Learning transfer; Training transfer

Transformational leadership, emotional intelligence, 34

Trust, in workplace, 118, 120

Tuition reimbursement: costs of, 424, 438; funding methods for, 423; graduate education and, 424–425, 427–428; HRD theory vs. human capital theory and, 425; perceived organizational support and, 427; prevalence of programs for, 423–424, 437; retention benefits of, 424, 427, 437–439; studies on, 423–429; turnover intention and, 425–427, 437–439. See also Turnover intention, tuition reimbursement and organizational support and (study)

"Tuition Reimbursement, Perceived Organizational Support, and Turnover Intention Among Graduate Business School Students," 423–442

Turnover intention: actual turnover and, 427; antecedents to, 427; attractive job alternatives and, 428; conventional vs. unfolding model of, 425–426, 428; cross-cultural differences and, 404–405, 414, 416; cross-cultural research on, 403; definition of, 404; ease of movement and, 425; embeddedness and, 425; employee human capital and, 426, 428; employee-job match and, 426; graduate education and, 427–428, 438; HRD programs and, 404; HRD theory vs. human capital theory and, 425; individual differences and, 404; job alternatives and, 426; job/career satisfaction and, 403–404, 425; organizational commitment and, 404; perceived organizational support and, 425, 427; predictors of, 427; tuition reimbursement and, 425–426. See also Turnover intention, in Taiwanese and U.S. organizations (study); Turnover intention, tuition reimbursement and organizational support and (study)

Turnover intention, in Taiwanese and U.S. organizations (study): allocentric vs. idiocentric view of self and, 407, 415; career development programs and, 413–414; data analysis, 410; discussion, 413–416; future research, 416; hypotheses, 408, 412–415; implications for HRD and, 413–416; job/career satisfaction and, 409; measures, 409; method, 408–412; model testing, 410; moderating effect and, 411–412; networking and, 415; organizational commitment and, 407, 409, 414–415; participants, 408–409; research model, 405–406; research questions, 405; results, 412–418; study limitations, 416

Turnover intention, tuition reimbursement and organizational support and (study): analyses, 432; degree completion and, 431–432, 434, 439; discussion, 436–439; employment hours and, 431; future research and, 438; HRD implications, 436, 439; hypotheses, 425, 427–429, 432, 434, 436; implications, 438–439; job relatedness and, 431–432, 434, 436, 439; limitations, 438; literature review, 424–426; measures, 430–432; methods, 429–432; perceived organizational support and, 430, 432, 436, 438; purpose, 424; results, 432–436; salary and, 431; sample, 429–430; studies on, 423–429; tenure and, 431; tuition reimbursement and, 430, 432, 436, 438–439; turnover intention and, 430, 432, 436, 437–439

V

Validity: construct, 13; content, 13; external, 14; face, 13; predictive, 14
Van der Krogt, F. J., "Roles of Informal Workplace Trainers in Different Organizational Contexts: Empirical Evidence from Australian Companies," 175–198
van Eekelen, I. M., "Learning in Interactive Work Situations: It Takes Two to Tango: Why Not Invite Both Partners to Dance?" 135–158
Van Horn, C. E., "Mega-Trends in the American Workforce," 475–479
Vasquez-Colina, M. D., review by, 359–363
Vermulst, A. A., "Roles of Informal Workplace Trainers in Different Organizational Contexts: Empirical Evidence from Australian Companies," 175–198

W

Wang, G. G., "Participation in Management Training in a Transitioning Context: A Case of China," 443–473
Wang, J., "Participation in Management Training in a Transitioning Context: A Case of China," 443–473
"Why We Fail: How Hubris, Hamartia, and Anagnosis Shape Organizational Behavior," 481–489
Work, redefinition of, 118–119
Work-life issues: developmental interactions and, 61; types of, 65
Workers: fringe benefits for, 119, 121; job autonomy and, 118; job satisfaction of, 118; trust and, 118, 120; work environment needs of, 118.
Workers. See Employees; Employee development; Employee learning; Workforce trends
Workforce diversity: demographic factors and, 325–326. See also Minority business enterprises (MBEs); Supplier diversity programs
Workforce trends: anxious American workers, 475; employer demand for better workers, 476; inadequate understanding/use of public workforce system, 476; work-filled retirement, 476
Workplace: as learning environment, 175–176; learning potential of, 179; learning transfer systems and, 180; trust in, 118, 120. See also Informal workplace trainers, roles of (study)
Workplace adaptation: acculturation and, 307; career advancement and, 307; competitive advantage and, 305–306; establishing relationships and, 307; factors affecting, 306–309; individual demographics/background and, 308–309; job knowledge and, 307; job satisfaction and, 307; workplace competencies and, 307–308; workplace socialization/adaptation and, 306–307
Workplace adaptation, and employee competencies (study): acculturation and, 307; conclusion, 320; correlational analyses of variables and, 317–318; demographic and background variables and, 308–309, 321; demographic survey and, 314–315; discussion, 320–321; establishing relationships and, 307; future research, 320–321; hierarchical regression analyses of variables and, 318–321; HRD implications and, 321– 322; hypotheses, 309, 317, 319–320; job knowledge and,

307; measures, 310–312; methods, 309–314; participants, 309–310; procedure, 312–314; purpose, 309; questionnaire, 313–314; research framework, 308; results, 314–320; validity/reliability evidence and, 315–321; workplace adaptation factors and, 306–309; workplace competencies and, 307–308, 321; workplace socialization and, 306–307

Workplace competencies: bias in assessment of, 307; definition of, 307–308. See also Job competencies, employee perceptions of, in China (study)

Workplace learning: formal training programs and, 200; importance of, 135; as informal/interactive, 136; informal learning and, 200; interaction as key in, 136; interaction partners and, 137–138; job context and, 148; key contributors to, 136; knowledge refinement and, 136; learning from others and, 135; power issues and, 138–139, 153; problem-solving contexts and, 200; productivity/competitiveness and, 199, 204; social context and, 137–138; social nature of, 204, 212; workplace socialization and, 306. See also Informal learning

Workplace socialization: definition, 306; group-level, 306; individual-level, 306; learning and, 306; organizational-level, 306; process model of, 306–307, 320; workplace adaptation and, 306–307

X

Xiao, J., "Survey Ranking of Job Competencies by Perceived Employee Importance: Comparing Three Regions," 371–402

Y

Yang, B., "Academic Journals Are Products of Professional Organizations," 131–133